

Dr. Angelos F. Vlachos is a tourism policy expert; BA and PhD / Univ. of Athens; MA Univ. of Sussex. Researcher (later Team Head) at the Foundation of the Hellenic World (FHW) dealing with Greek Culture and History at the Web and various cultural projects (1996-2002). His research activities concern the history of organized travel, tourism policy, sustainable development, and facets of 20th c. social and economic history. He has published extensively in academic journals, et al. His last book "Tourism Development and Public Policies in Modern Greece)", (Athens: 2016), highlights the state's role in the emergence of tourism as a cardinal political-economic venture in 20th c. Greece. After 2004, he moved in the tourism industry and later in the Greek Ministry of Tourism as Senior Policy Consultant focusing on various issues and then as Head of Office for Parliamentary Affairs. During 2010, he was named Director of the Greek National Tourism Organization Offices in China (Beijing/Shanghai). Between 2012-2013, a cruise company assigned him for setting up its edu-tainment strategy, while also contributing to a tv-series as Production Director. At 2014, he initiated a European co-funded research scheme (PPP Project) focusing on urban geography; right after, he coordinated an extended academic team setting up the Sustainable Tourism Observatory. Currently he is lecturing at the Tourism Dept of the University of Piraeus and also at the Hellenic Open University. Since 2016, he serves as a BoD member of Hellenic Republic Asset Development Fund (HRADF), coordinating the Seaplanes licensing Project; meanwhile, he represents the Greek Public/HRADF as a BoD member at the -privatized- ThPA, as a Fund Manager charged with the Concession Agreement's implementation and also participating at the Audit Committee of the Company.